FIFTH SUNDAY OF EASTER

That first reading from Acts always makes me cringe. It's at the very beginning of the section, where it says, "...the Hellenists complained against the Hebrews because their widows were being neglected in the daily distribution."

That's so evocative of the cultural blindness that continues to plague the Church and society. Can you imagine this? It's just months, or a very few years, from the resurrection of Jesus. Communities of faith have joyfully sprung up all over Jerusalem and parts of Asia. They are so on fire with Jesus that they even share everything in common. Except, apparently, when the members of the community are Greek (not Jewish) women. Then it's okay to ignore them at the distribution of food. I'll bet it was less being ignored and more just not being seen at all.

Thank God for Rosa Parks, who sat in the "White's Only" part of the bus until she was "seen." Her courage and witness paid off fairly soon. It was exactly one year later that the Supreme Court ruled the law allowing racial segregation on buses to be unconstitutional.

I remember a sad scene from my years as an elementary school teacher. Taking my turn on lunch duty, one day a group of distraught little girls came to me and said, "Miss McGovern, Elliot is crying!" Sure enough, there was little Elliott, crying, while his "friends" were utterly oblivious, throwing their lunch bags around and doing the things fourth-grade boys do. It took the girls from a table across the cafeteria to see this poor child in his misery.

Good for those Greek husbands who stood up for their wives. Who should we "see" today?

Do you feel seen by everyone in your life?
